

Environmental Sustainability Camp

In 2018, the City of Corning established an Environmental Sustainability Camp through its Parks & Recreation Program. This camp is designed to introduce aspects of sustainable living to the youth of our community, while also providing them with the knowledge to become young stewards for their living environment. The camp consists of guest speakers, hands on activities and field trips.

Guest speakers consist of recycling and solid waste professionals, local nature center employees, and a senior volunteer horticulturist. Guest speakers provide an invaluable resource to children of the community that have an early interest in taking care of their planet.

Every session of the camp includes a hands on activity to compliment that day's sustainability lesson. This keeps the campers engaged and intrigued and allows them to feel that they are a part of a sustainable future.