

eCode365

The City of Corning has implemented eCode360 from General Code Publishers which is available on the City's website. It was the first online platform to be specifically designed to house codified laws and municipal information.

The program allows people to easily research the Code of the City of Corning eliminating the need to reference and copy paper versions of the Code. This has reduced the use of paper, lowering costs and providing better transparency. It has also reduced the number of trips the City Council, staff, and members of the public take to City Hall to research paper copies.

Eventually, eCode365 will eliminate the City "Blue Code Books" and the many expensive supplements that are inserted into the books when there is a change in City's Code.
